Bespoke Design & Print Cases

Looking for something special to make you stand out from the competition? You can provide your own bespoke artwork, or our in-house design service can help create your baking case just how you want it. The manufacturing method is determined by the combination of design and print types, or vice versa.

There are three types of possible designs.

SINGLE COLOUR

Plain case that is printed in one-colour on the outside. Single colour designs can also be foil.

RANDOM PATTERN

Simple, all over patterns that do not specifically line up with the base or wall of the case. Pattern appears randomly all over the outside of the case.

REGISTERED

Design elements are specifically positioned on the case, for example when a logo is lined up on the base, or there's a fixed pattern around the wall.

Designs are printed in one of two ways:

Spot Colour Printing

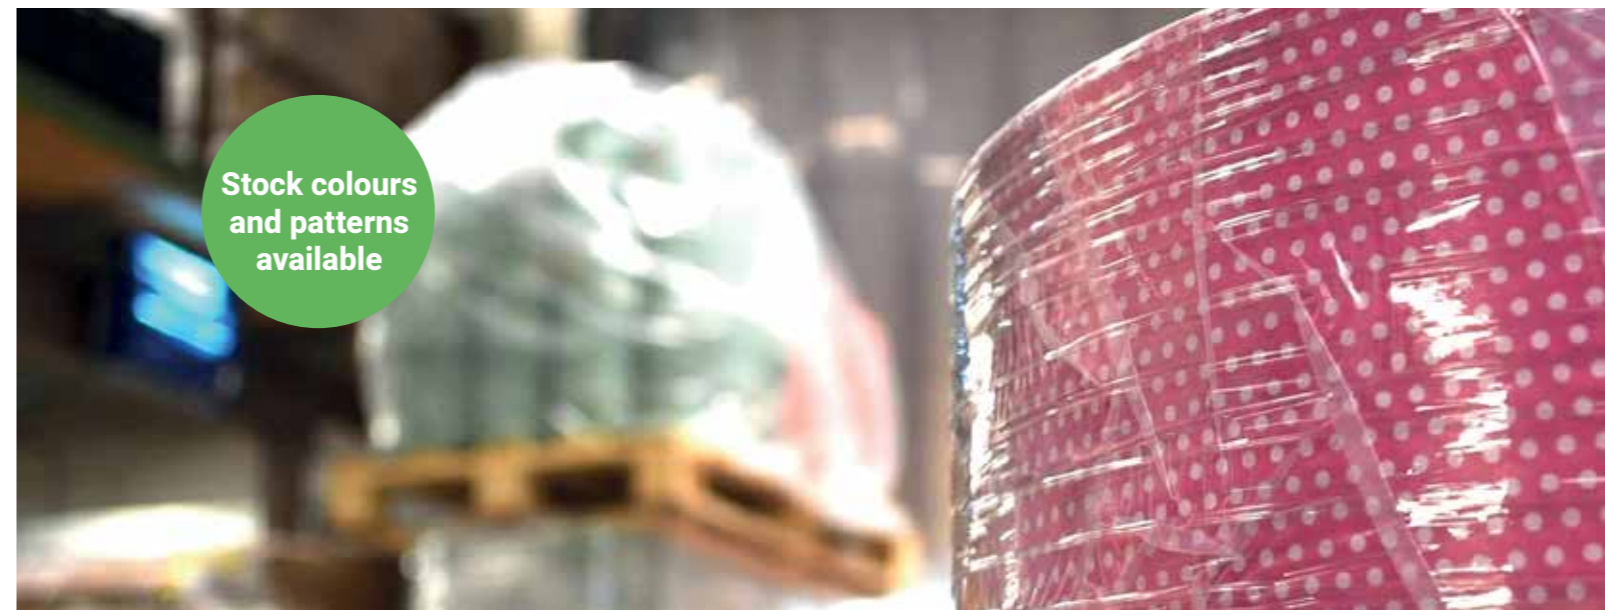

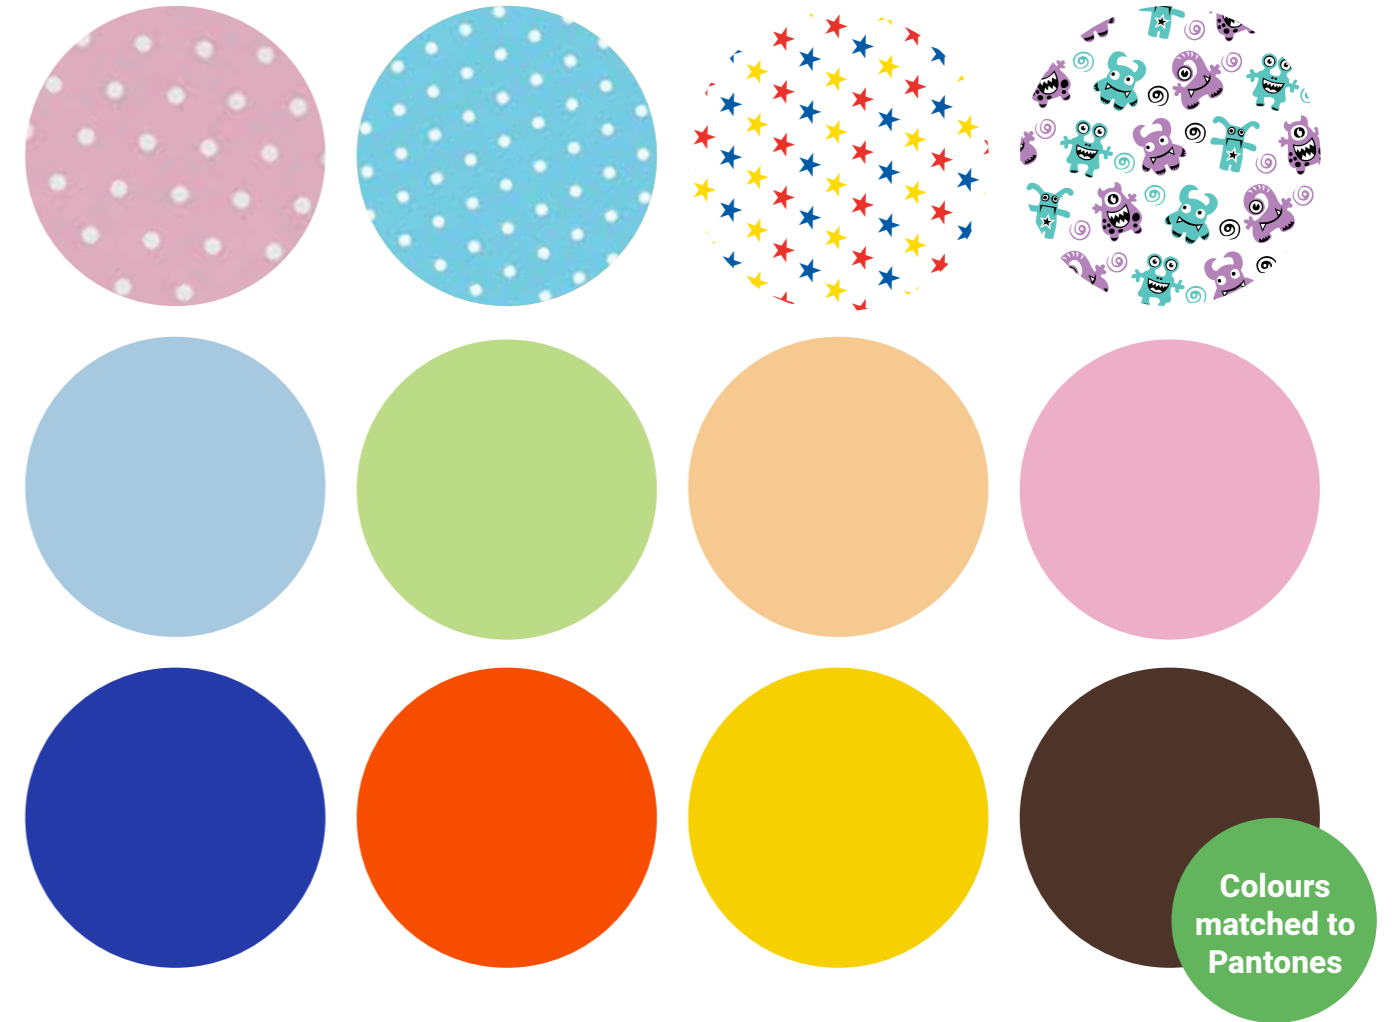

Uses an individual ink for every colour and printing each one separately. It is generally limited single colour, or simple designs with just a couple of colours to keep the costs low.

CMYK Printing

Also known as process printing or 4 colour printing uses only four colours: cyan, magenta, yellow and black. These are mixed to create infinite colours and shades in one design. More complex designs or photorealistic images can be produced using CMYK printing.

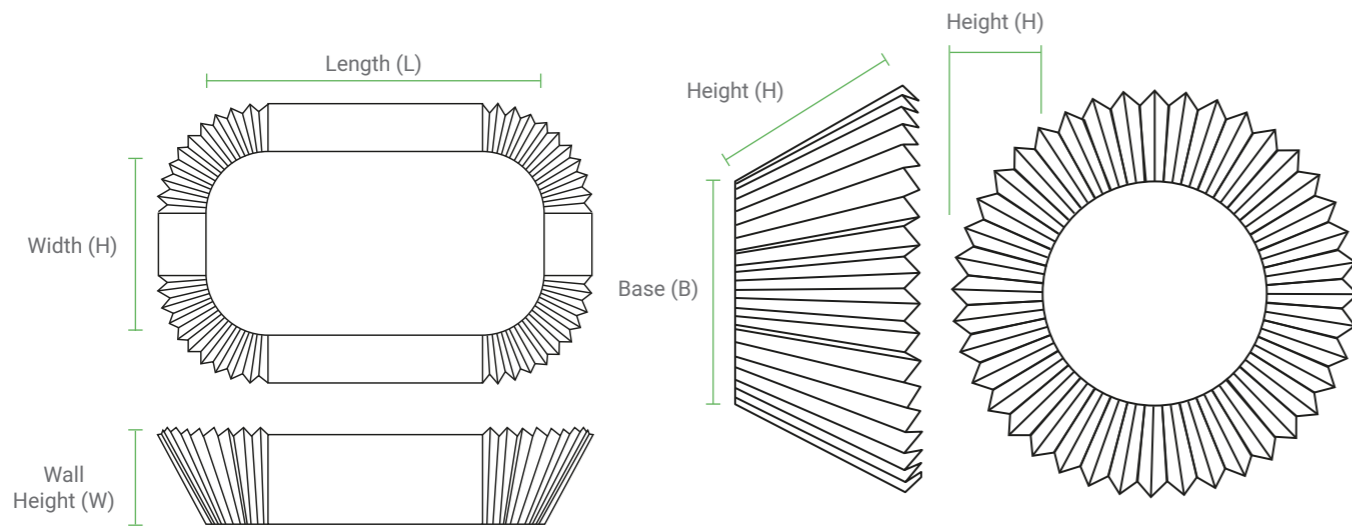

Choose from stock colours and patterns in the core sizes for the cheapest options and lowest MOQs, or talk to us about bespoke sizes and designs.

Liners

Our exceptionally versatile greaseproof and siliconised liners are available in round, oval, square or loaf tin shapes in a wide range of industry standard sizes. Suitable for baking, cooking, air frying and freezing, they can be used for anything from fondant fancies and flans, to fried chicken. Custom tooling is also possible for bespoke sizes.
